VI. A Terrible Case of Salt Rheum Both in shape and quality, which is guaranteed not to hurt.

Mr. J. P. Sarsfield—Dear Sir: I have been troubled more or less for many years with salt rheum, and last fall I had a terrible attack of the disease on my hands, arms, feet and legs, and was spreading all over my body. I suffered the most intense pain for months. I tried many remedies, but none appeared to give me any relief until I used your Chronic Ulcer Salve. I received immediate relief, and after using the salve for about two months, found myself cured of the direful disease. And I take great pleasure in recommending the Chronic Ulcer Salve to all persons troubled with that painful disease.

Sacramento, Cal., April 7, 1882.

Mr. J. P. Sarsfield—Dear Sir: In 1870 I was troubled with varicose veins, which became ruptured and broke cut on my shin bone, and for two years I suffered great pain and was unable to attend to any business. I was treated by several physicians in this city and elsewhere without receiving any relief; but accidentally hearing of some of the wonderful cures produced with your medicine and Ulear Salve, I determined to try it, and in about seven weeks I was permanently cured, and have not had the least trouble since; and it gives me great pleasure to give you this testimonial. Saturday, and several persons were badly hurt. THEOSOPHY AND OCCULTISM. We will publish next Saturday the first of a series of papers entitled "Theosophy and Occultism in India," written by Mr. George Frederic Parsons, late editor of the RECORD-UNION. The subjects to be discussed in these papers are the most important which the human mind can deal with. The question whether death ends all; whether, if there be an after life, it is progressive or otherwise; whether conduct determines destiny both here and hereafter; whether men must reap as they have sown : whether the material civilization of the age is moving in the right direction; whether the Western world has a monopoly of science; whether the Orient may not have been, in some things, more faithful to true Philosophy; are all involved in the review of the new Parsons. The challenge which Theosophy flings down to Spiritualism, moreover, is deeply significant. A time has almost been reached when the genuineness of the phenomena of Spiritualism has to be conceded, and when the bigots of materialistic Science are driven, like Huxley, to shuffle out the plain duty of serious investigation, by pretending that the phenomena. even if genuine, do not interest them. are now familiar with the phenomena for the dogmatic denials of their reality put forward by the aforesaid scientific bigots to not justified itself by its works. have any visible effect. The inquiry in fact has been shifted. It is no longer "Are the phenomena genuine?" but "Are they the effects of the causes postulated by the Spiritualists?" This is the gist of the contest between Theosophy and Spiritualism The former claims to have direct evidence for its positions. It rests its assumptions upon the alleged experience of living men, who are said to have acquired a command over natural laws which enables them to penetrate the secrets of nature. It is manifest that if such claims can be established they must afford a better basis for a philosophical system than the indirect, vague and too often contradictory and confused doctrines of Spiritualism. From Aristotle to Herbert Spencer, the supremacy of phenomena over reason has been asserted. "Phenomena," said the former,

The only difficulty in the way is to secure the hearty co-operation of the student class. That class naturally resents the interference of the Faculty with its sports. Illicit pleasures will, we fear, still be deemed the sweeter. But we believe this desired supervision can be brought about without friction by giving the student class representation upon the college board of management that must be erected to supervise the recreations. The chief aim must be to keep the praises and

In this work the public and the press have a part to perform, which simply is to show by its applause that it does not recognize the student who pulls a successful oar, or manifests the greatest endurance in a physical contest, as a greater hero than his weaker brother who achieves the highest honors that follow conscientious study. In other words, the achievements of the college athlete must not be lauded above

The Nation says that the substitution | the Grand Army. of California for French wines is rapidly increasing; the California wine-grower, or the merchant who buys from him, gives the California wine a foreign name for the purpose of finding a market for it, and it adds, this policy may, in a certain degree, be successful, but it is after all a shortsighted policy. If California wines continue to be sold under foreign labels they will never make a reputation of their own, but will be looked upon as cheats and counterfeits which ought not to appear on a gentleman's table. Only when they assert their worth in their own names will they be recognized as the equals of foreign products whenever they deserve it, and command a corresponding price.

not delayed; and the other class, those which pointed out and applied. During the speaker's treatment of that portion of his subject referring to the open and great sins, the fol-lowing allusion was made to the bloody Em-peror of Rome:

Asking what the ancestral fashion was he was informed that he would be stripped naked and scourged to death with rods, with his head thrust into a fork. Horrified at this he seized two daggers, and after theatrically trying their edges sheathed them again, with the excuse that the fatal moment had not yet arrived. Four different times we have been called upon to leave our work and appear before the Court, to answer to the disgraceful accusation of a drunken rowdy, who supposed somebody had taken away his money in a street brawl, in which my son had no further share than to try to searaste the combatants, and then than to try to separate the combatants, and then calling for assistance from a passer-by, failing in both, coming home (this is the whole case in a nutshell). The opportunity to prove these facts has been lost, to all appearance, by the accuser absenting himself from the reach of the officers. My son ing himself from the reach of the officers. My 80n and myself feel keenly the false light he is placed in by the turn things have taken. ### WELLIGENGE. THE OBSEQUIES.

Yesterday the remains of five of the victims of Friday moraing's catastrophe were laid in where the deceased had worked.

At 2 P. M. the funeral services over the remains of John Hitzenberger, Henry F. Schweitzer and Henry Hopfe, were held at Turner Hall. Long before the hour set for the services to begin the hall was packed with friends of the deceased. There were many who could not gain admittance, and they, with the crowd of curious people, completely filled the sidewalk and street for a block either way from the hall. A detachment of sixteen men from each military company had been ordered out by the regiment commander to act as an escort, but the companies turned out 200

Chief Karcher ordered us out; I went home and changed my clothes and then went back and found Oliver Jackson digging in the debris for a dog; I assisted him, and then went home and went to bed. Next morning we found Lawrence Miller first; he was under the floor, and it took a long time to get him out; had to cut the roof first and then the floor; Rademacher was covered with mortar and brick, and there did not appear to be any timbers on the body; all the dead men were nearer to the west side than to the east, execpting Brelsford, who was nearer the east Rev. Dr. C. Taubner conducted the services. His elequent and sympathetic discourse showed deep thought. His text was selected from the Gospel of St. Mark, 13th chapter, 35th to 37th verses: "Watch, ye, therefore, for you know not when the Lord of the house cometh; at even, or at midnight, or at the cock crowing, or in the morning. Lest, coming on a sudden, He find you sleeping. And what I say to you I say to all, watch." After discoursing on the above text he further remarked that one could rather press the hand of the mourners and in silent.

The singing was by a select choir from the Verein-Eintracht.

At the close of the services the cortege formed in the following order: Military, led by the Hussar band of nineteen pieces; Red Jacket Tribe, No. 28, Imp. O. R. M., including many members from other Tribes; Verein Eintracht; Sacramento Lodge, No. 2. I. O. O. F.; California Lodge, No. 1,580, Knights of Honor; hearses bearing the remains, each followed by mourners in carriages; a long line of carriages and citizens on foot. The procession when formed was one of the solon walls; the building; the dead bodies were either all in the center or on the west side; in my opinion the west side went down first; there was about twenty feet of wall above the roof of the saloon building; I heard some one say that the musicians rushed for their horns when the first alarm came.

measures of the Chinese hucksters that ped-dle vegetables, fish, etc., from door to door, and finds that a systematic and constant and finds that a systematic and constant practice of swindling through giving short weights is maintained, the degree of shortage being almost incredible. In following up the subject he purchased a small pair of scales subject he purchased a small pair of scales one; if it had been anchored at the corners it would have been safer; it looks as and finds that a systematic and constant being almost incredible. In following up the subject he purchased a small pair of scales and commenced weighing articles bought, and sound the swindle amounted to from twenty five to fifty per cent. For instance, salmon purchased for two pounds was found to weigh but one and one-fourth pounds. The Chinaman being asked to weigh it over again, did so, and by the Celestial's scales was found to weigh one pound and three-quarters. This disclosed two facts. First, that the huckster used false scales, and second that he further falsified in the act of weighing. Housekeepers would do well, therefore, to watch against being thus swindled; and the proper way to do so is to keep conveniently at hand balance or scales, and to test the weight whenever deemed suspicious. Unfortunately, however, the matter of short weights and measures does not apply alone to the "heathen Chinee," for there are other dealers also who have scales and measures "which the same are peculiar." And while we are about driving out the Chinese money changers with a scourge of small ropes and scales, because of his shortcomings and taking in too many of our dimes without due equivalent, let us be cautious not to make a mistake and get parcels purchased from others than Chinese upon our scaler, and bring upon ourselves the mortification of discovering that the American pot has been calling the Chinese kettle black.

The remains of Thomas C. Brelsford, a victim of the disaster, still lies at the Coroner's office. He was a man past the prime of life, and has been in Sacramento for over a year, yet no one knows where his friends or relatives reside. There is no one to shed a tear over his body or any one to place a flower on his coffin. He will probably be buried on Tuesday.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

Two years ago this Spring our trade in Ladies' and Children's Ready-made Cloaks and Suits had grown sufficiently to warrant the organization of a department devoted exclusively to the interests and sale of such goods.

We soon found, however, that chiefly on account of sizes and the wide diversity of tastes, that no matter how large our stock, it would be impossible to conduct the department with true success unless we could supply possible deficiencies in the stock by making goods to order. A manufacturing branch was accordingly established. Its aim was and is to furnish garments equal in style and finish to ready-made goods, and at as low prices. Thus, customers who cannot be served from the assortment of readymade goods can have what they desire made to order at about the same cost.

WHAT IT IS.

But we believe that Sacramento presents a field for work of a still higher kindwork requiring the best skill and labor obtainable, and having for its aim the production of garments in the FINEST STYLE. To such trade we now propose to cater. Accordingly the services have been secured of very skillful dressmakers, and we are now ready to attempt the most elaborate work with a surety of satisfaction.

WHAT IS PROPOSED.

In this new departure we shall not limit ourselves to making up such materials only as are purchased in our stores, but will use any goods which customers may choose to bring us.

And while, as before hinted, we shall be more intent on the style, beauty and finish of our garments than on the cost, we intend to preserve such just moderation in charges as will be in keeping with the general policy of the house.

We are thus provided with two distinct Manufacturing Departments: One devoted to medium-grade goods; the other to fine work. Customers are at liberty to choose between them. Now that so many ladies are engaged in planning and getting up new costumes and wraps for spring and summer wear, we shall be pleased to have persons who are interested call and inspect our facilities.

CACHEMIRIENNE, 25c. A YARD.

This material is a combined CASH-MERE AND MERINO. Having a heavy twill on one side, and fine twill on the other; 28 inches wide, and in a number of fashionable colors. The same goods in double fold, 50 cents per yard.

THE IMAGE CASE. Of course you have also heard of the INMAN ROYAL MAIL image case of Lizzie Gannon against the Catholic Archbishop and a priest named Fleming. A girl aged 13 had epileptic fits and trances and swoons. She claimed to see spirits of the dead and talk with them. She had a box of card-board images of She had a box of card-board images of these she talked and sang and was deeply attached. These paper figures had a quieting influence upon her. The priest took away the images, and the girl became despondent and fell into speechlessness, lost her sight and is hopelessly prostrate. For this was the suit brought by the girl's mother for $5,000 damages. The Archbishop showed that he had nothing to do with the KENNEDY & CO.. case, and the suit, as to him, was set aside. It is a strange case, indeed. As you have by this time heard, the jury gave a verdict for the nominal sum of one cent for plaintiff. The priest, it was proven, laid hands on the girl, and sought by prayer to exorcise the evil one, and was very earnest in his endeavers. It was testified to that the girl was subject to "stigmata" or bleeding from the pores in the feet, side, forehead and palms of the hand, which the superstitious believe to have been manifestations of the sufferings on the cross-a supersti-ENTIST, QUINN'S BUILDING, northeast corner Fourth and J streets.
